KITTYHAWK CLARINET QUARTET

The Kittyhawk Clarinet Quartet is one of the newest ensemble components from the United States Air Force Band of Flight, stationed at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. The group is exceptionally flexible, and is effective whether playing to an audience of schoolchildren or to an international convention of musicians. A vital part of the Band of Flight's ongoing commitment to Education Outreach and community relations support, the Kittyhawk Clarinet Quartet travels extensively during the school year, bringing the "Air Force message" to students of all demographics. Whether conducting interactive master classes for student musicians or performing in nationally renowned concert halls, the group personifies the musical excellence that Band of Flight audiences have enjoyed for years.

Each group member brings a unique musical perspective to the ensemble, and the sum of these professional experiences is the vibrant musical tapestry reflected in their repertoire. Led by Technical Sergeant Carolyn Sargent, the Kittyhawk Clarinet Quartet consists of Staff Sergeant Wendy Harvey, Staff Sergeant Tyler Selden and Senior Airman Kristin Younkin.

This versatile group provides robust settings of musical favorites, and is sure to entertain the whole family.
